Students meet with chance for

By MELISSA EYLER
Guest Writer

While other students were still hitting the snooze bar on their alarm clocks, eight assembled at 7 a.m. in Chancellor Joanne Laus's office to begin their "Conversation with the Chancellor." A breakfast of muffins, fruit and juice was presented to the students. Frank Borrelli, vice chancellor for Student Affairs, was there as well.

"We're interested in conducting fund-raising events that would be open to everyone,"

—Don Reese

How did they get there? The Student Alumni Council, student organizations throughout campus and selected eight to participate on Dec. 5 for an hour-long breakfast. It was a chance for students to get an audience with the woman who will be shaping campus policy and growth in the coming years. When the gathering ended—20 minutes over—most agreed that they could have talked even longer.

Selected to attend were: Traci Brookbank, sophomore auditing major; Deborah Kelly, a senior psychology major; Shalee Morrow, a senior in general studies/teaching/child care; Greg Lantz, a senior in civil and industrial engineering technology; Kim Barber, a senior in English; Michael Cowley, a freshman student studying premedical studies major; Geoffrey Kelsaw, a senior majoring in music education; and Dan Reese, a junior business major.

Brookbank, Morrow and Lantz did not attend. Marci Coppy, a sophomore English major, attended as Barber's guest. They represented the IPFW Arts Group and its literary journal, "Confidante."

Lisa Rice, SAC executive director and Katie Gilmour, event chair, were there as well.

The first question came from "older students." Deborah Kelly Lantz told her she can now refer to herself as "the new majority," since 45 percent of IPFW students are older than the "traditional" college ages of 18-24.

Kelly wanted to know why there aren't more student activities geared to the "new majority," consisting of single-parent and two-parent families. Lantz mentioned that some events already have built in family appeal, such as FORTE Festival of Arts, athletic events and many evening entertainment events planned by the Student Activities Board.

Borrelli added, "Student Activities has been in transition for the past couple of years. We have just hired someone as director of the Women's Center and Adult & Entry Students, which should have an effect on activities."

Reese, president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, added, "We're interested in conducting fund-raising events that would be open to everyone." Chairman of the Black Collegian Council, concurred "Yes, and BCC would like to plan a dinner-dance that would be open to everyone. Sometimes, though, the rest of the campus thinks our events are just for black students, and that's not true."

From there, the questions shifted to parking problems in the Fort Wayne area. A parking garage is a possibility in the future, Lantz said. She also encouraged students to find a good adviser and to take responsibility for one's own education. Dormitories are not in the campus long-term plans, said Lantz.

In addition, Kelsaw presented an argument about the need to hire more minority faculty members. Borrelli has established a campus committee to pursue recruitment and retention of what minority faculty, but students as well. Gilmour serves on this committee.

Reese announced that his fraternity boy money to build a house, but no place to put it. Both Lantz and Borrelli mentioned it's possible that fraternities and sororities could take out long-term leases on some of IPFW's undeveloped land. Reese will submit a proposal later.

On the emergency evacuation sheets handed out later, everyone gave Lantz a listing of "excellent" for her name and suggestions.

"Conversation with the Chancellor" was a success for students to talk about any of their campus-related projects. A small group asking SAC plans to schedule more gatherings in the future, but in the afternoon or evening.

"Let's do it at 7 a.m. next time," said Coppy. "If the sun's not up, I'm not up."

Editor's note: Melissa Eyster is a member of the SAC.

Shooting club needs members

A shooting club composed of students is now forming at IPFW and is looking for members. The club will provide firearm safety and education and will also offer target shooting competition. Any student interested in joining the club should contact David Painter at 749-4046.

Intramural officials needed

Anyone interested in becoming an intramural basketball official is invited to attend an orientation meeting tomorrow at 5 p.m. in the Athletic Center Room 183. This paid position is open to both men and women.

SAC holds Operation Santa

The Student Alumni Council is sponsoring Operation Santa Claus to provide Christmas gifts to needy children in our area. Those interested in helping the project may take a shopping with a child's name on it from the chimney display (located on the first floor of Wolf Memorial Union), purchase and wrap a gift for the child, tape the sticker to the gift and return it to the display by tomorrow. SAC will then deliver the gifts to the Salvation Army for distribution to local needy children.

For more information call the Alumni Office at 481-4007.

Team, club sponsor fun run

The IPFW cross country team and the Fort Wayne Track Club are sponsoring a New Year's Eve Fun Run on Sunday, Dec. 31, at the IPFW Athletic Center. The run will begin at 11 a.m. For more information, call Jerry Diehl, IPFW cross country coach, at 481-4030.

Sunday Mass to be offered

University Religious Forum and Campus Ministry will sponsor Sunday Evening Mass for college students and young adults every Sunday at 8 p.m. at St. Jude's Church on East State Street. Refreshments will be available afterward in the church basement.

For more information, contact the University Religious Forum/Campus Ministry Office in Wolf Memorial Union Room 218 or call 481-4994.

Committee announces contest

The Student's 15th Anniversary Gift Committee has begun accepting design submissions at 401 Main, New 27 for the China Legacy Challenge contest. The contest will award gift certificates for the best designs of 10 space, plus a gift that will be a gift from the student body to honor our 25th anniversary. The prize for the winning entry will be a $250 gift certificate, $100 for second place and $50 for third. All entries should be submitted by Friday, Jan. 20.

For more information about the contest or how to join the committee, contact Scott Kelschberger at 481-4042 or Ingrid Lindros at the Student's Government Office, 401-4666.

'Family' to air on Channel 6

Channel 6 (formerly Channel 22) will feature a program titled "Family, Children and Community," which will deal with careers and organizations in early childhood development, native activities, eating disorders, parenting techniques and discipline strategies, and choosing appropriate toys for children. The program can be seen on Tuesdays at 9 p.m. and Thursdays at 5:30 p.m.

Facility posts new hours

The Athletic Center's new facility hours will Monday through Thursday from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m.

Communicator seeks writers

The Communicator is looking for interested students to write news, sports and features for the spring semester. No experience is required, time investment is minimal, and the schedule is flexible to suit work and school. Photographers are also needed. Photographers need to have their own 35 mm cameras, film and development. For more information contact Lori Bishop, editor in chief, or Jim Barker, advertising editor, at the Communicator, Wolf Memorial Union, Suite 215.

IPFW plans fields

By GRETCHEN HALPERT
Staff Writer

Lead news on the recent entrance of the IPFW campus is currently being graded and reseeded, according to Don Katter, director of the physical plant.

Future plans for the site, located between Evelyn Drive and St. Joe Center Road, include construction of two soccer fields and a softball diamond.

This area was previously unusable due to drainage problems. Rainwater from across St. Joe Center Road would flow through gullies in the land toward the St. Joe Center Road, drainage catch basins were installed that alleviated this problem, said Katter.

Full dirt necessary to level the low areas in this property was donated by the contractor working with Midwest Bridge on the St. Joe Center expansion. Excavation dirt was moved onto this land by the contractor. Normally, this soil would have to be hauled away from construction, but the IPFW campus was conveniently close. It was easier for the contractor to push the dirt onto campus land with machines being used for construction rather than haul it off, said Katter. The donated full was clean, he said, and the contractor is grading the land and reseeding it at no charge to the university.

Plans for the new soccer fields and softball diamond were conceived after the contractor approached the university about donating the land. It was a way to create usable space and to increase intramural areas.

Two soccer fields were chosen because the IPFW varsity soccer team has no practice field and must practice on its playing field. Most soccer teams save the playing fields for games. Soccer fields were also chosen for their versatility. "Those soccer fields can be used for football, or anything else—anything you need a flat surface to play on," said Katter. He also said there is no softball diamond on campus, except for one across the St. Joe Center.

An exact date for construction of these athletic facilities isn't known, but we'll start to go to step two, we'll worry about how we fund it," said Katter.

Other projects around the north entrance include moving back a lighted sign from St. Joe Center Road and replacing two boulevard trees that are removed during the road work. This would probably be done next summer, Katter said.

Students participate in Central Soya project

By KAYLENE PENA
News Editor

Lori Pressler and Nick Nikolenko have almost completed their junior year. They have also almost completed a $24 million project for Central Soya.

Pressler and Nikolenko are IPFW students involved in the Cooperative Education program.

This program allows students to alternate work and classes each semester. Deborah Corbin, associate director of the Cooperative Education program, said that the program's main purpose is to allow the student to concentrate on either work or school. Some colleges work on a parallel schedule where work and school are done simultaneously.

The program started in spring 1986 and was sponsored by the Department of Education. Originally, the entire project was funded by the department. Now IPFW picks up the largest share of the cost. At the end of five years, the program should be self-supporting. Students must maintain a 3.0 GPA on a 4.0 scale, and must be full-time students. Students must also have completed freshman requirements in their major before starting cooperative education. "This is a great opportunity," said Pressler.

Pressler noted, "When the program first started, one of my professors mentioned it in class, and it sounded interesting and like it would be a good opportunity."

The Central Soya project required the two students to design the control system for the company's plant in Bellevue, Ohio. Nikolenko stated, "I had a hard time with the math in a whole new plant."

Dave Brandell, senior control engineer for Central Soya, noted, "It's our biggest control project in 10 years. It's a very difficult job for us to do."

"It's added. The effort they put into it will pay off down the road," Nikolenko said.

Pressler said she has more responsibility in the class, and it sounded interesting and like it would be a good opportunity. The program helps students decide if they are ready for the right direction by giving them the opportunity to experience on-the-job training. The company must also provide a job that can grow with the students. "We were lucky; we got to see a project through from beginning to end." "The technical area had never had any co-op students before. We were the first and we designed work. Everyone has been very proud."

BCC donates scholarship funds

The Black Collegian Council recently donated $105 to the Levin Scott and William Wilson Scholarships. Accepting the check was Bettye Pezard, director of Multicultural Services. Women back on winning track

By JASON HERRON
Sports Editor

Lisa Miller scored a career-high 31 points and grabbed a career-high 10 rebounds to lead the IPFW women's basketball team to a 74-47 road win over Saginaw Valley State.

"It is my upped the women's record to 6-2 and stopped a two-game losing streak."

Miller hit on seven of 11 field goals and made 17 of 30 free throws en route to the 31-point outburst. Miller's 17 free throws set a school single-game record, while her 31 points are the third-highest, single-game output in school history, and her 10 rebounds is the second-highest total in a game.

Miller was rewarded for her outstanding effort by being named one of the Great Lakes Valley Conference's "Top-Players of the Week." Joining Miller as players of the week were St. Joseph's Jeannette Yeaman, who scored 36 points in two games, and Leanne' Chua Tusceno, who scored 38 points in two games.

Sophomore Amy Newhouse and junior Robin Scott also played well, as both scored in double figures. Newhouse scored 18 points, had five steals and three assists. Scott scored 12 points and grabbed five rebounds.

Also scoring were Pam Edwards with six points, Teresa Merrell five points, Shelly Seads four points, Dawn Harward two points.

Miller hit on seven of 11 field goals and made 17 of 30 free throws en route to the 31-point outburst.

percent, good for third in the conference.

Merrell is averaging 14.3 points per game, while she is leading the team in free throw shooting at 69 percent, good for third in the conference. She is also leading the team in three-point shooting, hitting 41 percent from long range, good for sixth in the conference.

Scott is the fourth member of the team averaging in double figures to scoring with her 12.5 points-per-game average.

As a team, the Lady Dons rank high in several categories. They are third in the GLVC in field goal percentage at 47 percent, third in offensive average at 78.8 points per game, third in free throw percentage at 67 percent. They rank fourth in three-point percentage at 40 percent and fifth in assists with 17.8 per game.

The Lady Dons return to action Saturday when they host the University of Southern Indiana at 5:15 p.m. This will be the Lady Dons first GLVC game of the year.

Jordan, Howard lead men to two wins

Team remains undefeated, raises record to 8-0

By JASON HERRON
Sports Editor

Senior Lawrence Jordan and junior Glenn Howard scored in double figures in each of the IPFW men's basketball team's two wins last week.

State as his 19 points paced IPFW. The senior point guard also had six steals, grabbed five rebounds and dished out four assists. Howard knocked in 15 points, and senior Lloyd Segert scored 12 points.

Eric Vaughn joined Jordan in grabbing five rebounds in both games.

As usual, a different cast of players led the way in the 116-80 win over Concordia, as five players scored in double figures. Six-foot freshman John Holmström led the Dons in both scoring and rebounding with his 15 points and seven boards. Howard and Jordan again played well as Howard scored 15 points, and Jordan scored 14 points, dished out nine assists and grabbed five rebounds.

Freshman Sean Gibson added 12 points, and Vaughn scored 11 points and handed out five assists. Also scoring were Sam Long with eight points, Kevin Boucher with seven, Kevin Shank and Lloyd Segert with six, Scott Burkhardt and Doug Reinkens with four and Mike Piman with three.

With his scoring outburst, Jordan raised his scoring average to 17.3 points per game.

The Dons will return in the hardwood tonight when they host Indiana Tech at 7:30 p.m. and the University of Southern Indiana Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The game with Southern Indiana will be the Dons first GLVC game of the year. At press time, Southern Indiana stood at 6-0.

average to 11.3 points per game, tape on the squad. Segert is the only other member of the team averaging in double figures at 11.1 p.p.g.

Jordan is averaging 6.9 assists per game, which is number one in the Great Lakes Valley Conference. Holmström is fourth in field goal percentage, hitting 70 percent of his shots, while Burkhardt is seventh at 70 percent. Segert's 91 percent free throw shooting is good for fifth in the conference, while Long is seventh in three-point shooting at 53 percent.

In statistics, the Mustangs lead the GLVC with 24.4 assists per game. They rank second in offense with their 92.4 points-per-game average, fourth in field goal percentage at 54 percent and fourth in scoring margin, as they are winning by an average of 17.3 points per game.

The Dons will return in the hardwood tonight when they host Indiana Tech at 7:30 p.m. and the University of Southern Indiana Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The game with Southern Indiana will be the Dons first GLVC game of the year. At press time, Southern Indiana stood at 6-0.

Students exhibit art

By LLOYD FINKERTON

IPFW Students
Ten students from advanced ceramics classes taught by Nancy McCrokey, assistant professor of fine arts, will share the spotlight in the upcoming First Presbyterian Gallery exhibition which will open on Sunday, Jan. 14, and run through Feb. 25.

Artists whose work will be exhibited include Jean Barile, Nancy Darrington, Jaleh Farzi, Neil Fendemaker, Lloyd Finkerton, Diane Rowlett, Rick Schneider, Paylin Stanley, Joan Streiber and James Wilson.
Also exhibiting in the same show will be a former IPFW student photographer Sue Sells. Sells was a founding member of The Orchard Gallery of Fine Arts located in Times

Corner. She is also active in Artlink.
An opening reception for all of the exhibitors and their friends will be held in the Gallery at 10 a.m. on Jan. 14. The public is invited to the opening reception.
The First Presbyterian Gallery is located at 30 West Wayne Street, and is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.
